The Fallbrook International Film Festival (FIFF), which takes place Friday, April 5 through Thursday, April 11, features a dazzling lineup of 65 films, many of which include well-respected actors, directors, and producers in the industry. Three interesting workshops are offered as well. The crowning glory will take place at the festival's gala awards ceremony Sunday evening at Pala Casino, when several honors will be presented, including one for career achievement to well-known actor David Hasselhoff.

The film "Shuffle," directed by Kurt Kuenne will receive the festival's top film honor, the Frank Capra Award. Festival founder Ronald Shattuck described the film as being "brilliantly written and directed." Starring T.J. Thyne, who is best known for his role as entomologist Dr. Jack Hodgins on the popular television series "Bones," the film "tells the tale of a man who begins experiencing his life out of order; every day he wakes up at a different age, on a different day of his life, never knowing where or when he's going to be once he falls asleep."

A screening of "Shuffle" will take place Friday, April 5 as a part of a group of screenings beginning at 6:30 p.m. All screenings take place at the Digiplex Cinemas in Bonsall's River Village.
